SMALL FIRES

A Man in Arcadia Loses His Home.

Building in the Kahn Yard Burned Last Night Early.

The home of Ed Fletcher, colored, an employee at the coal tipples in Mechanicstown, was burned Saturday about 6:30 p. m. The house was located on the Afton Heights road near Wallace park, and his wife being at a neighbor's and her husband not having returned from work, there was no one at home. The loss is a total one, $200 that had been saved being destroyed with the furniture, valued at $200. It is supposed the flames originated from a coal from the grate. There was no insurance. The fire department was notified that a house near 11th and Madison was burning, but found upon making the run that the light was from the country.

Fire broke out in a frame house occupied by negroes in the Kahn yard last night about 8 o'clock and totally destroyed the contents of the building and damaged the building beyond repair. The fire originated from a fire in the stove, it is thought, and was burning briskly when the firemen arrived. The loss to the occupants will be total. The building and contents were worth little and were not insured.

The smoke that mystified the firemen who were called to the Register office Friday night proved to come from a coal which had fallen under the floor in the smelting room, the smoke going through the pipe hole under the floor of the mechanical department. There was little damage.

PROMINENT MAN DIES

Mr. F. A. Hessig, Memphis Clubman, Dead Here.

Lived Here Many Years Ago and Was in Late Years a Rich Memphis Druggist.

OTHER DEATHS HERE

Mr. Fred A. Hessig, late of Memphis, Tenn., died at 13:10 o'clock this morning at the residence of his brother, Dr. H. T. Hessig, 608 South Eighth street, of paralysis. Mr. Hessig had been ill for two years and had been in a serious condition since last February. He was carried from his home in Memphis, to Sanitarium at Philadelphia and Dayton, Ohio, to improve his health, but his case was found to be hopeless and he came here two months ago. He gradually grew worse until death came to him this morning as a relief to suffering.

Mr. Hessig was born in Cincinnati, and was 48 years of age. He came to Paducah with his parents when two years old and remained here until 1873 when he went to Memphis, where he became connected with the G. W. Jones Drug company. Later he became a member of the Van Fleet Drug company and was vice president of this company, which is one of the most prominent in the south, for 18 years. After retiring from the Van Fleet company he established the Hessig-Elke Drug company in Memphis, but only could meet it a short while, selling it on account of his failing health a year ago last February. It is said he left quite a large estate.

Mr. Hessig was a member of the old Chickasaw guard and later of the Chickasaw club of Memphis. He was also a member of the Tennessee club, the Memphis team of 1890 and the Memphis lodge of Elks. Having been exalted ruler of the Memphis Elks at one time.

His only surviving relatives are his mother, Mrs. Kathie Hessig and his brother, Dr. H. T. Hessig, both of this city. He was a man of genial disposition and had many friends.

The funeral will take place from Dr. Hessig's residence Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock, with services conducted by Rev. H. F. Workman of the German Evangelical church. The burial will be at Oak Grove.

Ben Massey, aged 29, died at his home at Little Cypress, Marshall county, last night from typhoid pneumonia. He was unmarried, and the remains were today buried in the Public burying ground.

The remains of the late Capt. Smedley Strong will be taken to Hickman for burial but the date has not yet been decided. Probably the departure will be tomorrow morning.

POLICEMAN KILLS HIMSELF.

Memphis, Tenn., Dec. 14.—All Memphis is agog over a tragedy last night when Henry Kressenbrugg, a grocer, was fatally shot by a masked man, who was fired at once and a shot in the leg by a grocer. Two blocks away the body of Policeman John T. King was found. He had shot himself in the temple and died instantly. The mask, made from handkerchiefs, was still on his face. The grocer had just closed up, and had the day's receipts in his hand, but no effort was made to get them, and the cause of the shooting is unknown. Some hint that there was a woman at the bottom of it.

ASSAULTED A WOMAN.

Knoxville, Tenn., Dec. 14.—Dr. Helen Ellis, a woman practitioner, was called out at 3 o'clock in the morning by a man who said she was wanted to wait on a woman nearby. After getting in the buggy to accompany her, he seized her, and attempted to prevent an outcry, but she screamed and he jumped out and ran. It is believed her assailant was an ex-convict.

Mrs. N. S. Walker arrived from Dyersburg today at noon to visit her parents Mr. and Mrs. O. C. Orumbaugh.

TEST OF ORDINANCE

Contractors Claim All Should be Charged Alike.

Object to Those Taking Small Jobs not Being Charged License.

OSTEPATHS WANT TEST, ALSO

The ordinance passed some time ago by the local boards specifying that all contractors bidding on or taking jobs of $500 or more shall pay a license of $10 a year, is to be tested in the courts.

Among the persons warranted last week at the instance of license inspector J. M. Hazel for failing to pay license, is Mr. W. T. Kirkpatrick, a well known carpenter contractor. Mr. Kirkpatrick announced today to Prosecuting Attorney Thomas Harrison that he wanted to fight the case.

When his name was called in police court he so stated to Judge Sanders, and a continuance was granted. He stated to a reporter that the ordinance will be opposed on the grounds that it is unconstitutional in that it discriminates between contractors requiring a man to pay $10 a year if he takes a $500 job, while if he should take a $499 job he would not have to pay the city a cent, the ordinance thus becoming class legislation. Mr. Kirkpatrick claims he has investigated the law and finds that the supreme courts have knocked out similar laws.

The contractors claim that the smaller contractors should pay a license just as well as the larger ones. That doctors, merchants and others are not licensed according to the size of the jobs they undertake or the amount of business they do, and that neither should contractors be. It is understood other contractors are looking Mr. Kirkpatrick.

Another interesting contest that is coming up will be that of Mrs. E. L. Whitesides and Dr. J. B. Grogan, the osteopaths, who were also warranted for failing to pay their license. Prosecuting Attorney Harrison stated to the court that the defendants claim that they are not liable to a license, as they do not come under the head of "practicing physicians." He asked that the case be continued, which was granted. All the other warrants for failing to pay city license have been dismissed.

CLIMATIC CURES.

The influence of climatic conditions in the cure of consumption is very much overdrawn. The poor patient, and the rich patient, too can do much better at home by proper attention to food digestion, and a regular use of German Syrup. Free expectoration in the morning is made certain by German Syrup, so is a good night's rest and the absence of that weakening cough and debilitating night sweat. Restless nights and the exhaustion due to coughing, the greatest danger and dread of the consumptive, can be prevented or stopped by taking German Syrup liberally and regularly. Should you be able to go to a warmer climate, you will find that of the thousands of consumptives there, the few who are benefited and regain strength are those who use German Syrup. Trial bottles, 25c; regular size, 75c. For sale by DuBois, Kolb & Co.

Negroes Confess to Murder Near Hopkinsville.

A Most Diabolical Deed With Robbery as the Sole Motive.

MURDERERS UNDER ARREST

Hopkinsville, Ky., Dec. 14—George Holland, Dick Carney, Frank Meriweather, Frank Masie, Charles Finch and Bill Garrott, negroes, were arrested at Pembroke and confessed to murdering an unknown white man whose body was found November 19 in the woods. They saw the man buy a bottle of whiskey and display a large roll of bills in a Pembroke saloon Saturday night, November 14, and followed him to R. T. Chile's farm, where he built a fire and went to sleep. The negroes crept to him and Meriweather dealt a fearful blow with a club, crushing the skull. The body quivered, and, thinking the wound had not been fatal, George Holland sprang on the writhing form and buried a knife blade in his throat.

All the negroes took part in searching the body. When the pockets were rifled and the spoils divided the murderers cut off their victim's face and buried the flesh. The shoes and socks were pulled from the dead man's feet and hurled, and the clothes he wore were slashed with knives. The body was dragged back twenty feet into the woods and buried under a pile of rails, where it was uncovered on the following Tuesday by hogs and partly devoured.

Gov. Beekman offered a reward of $250 for the capture and conviction of the murderers. Additional rewards, $100 by Pembroke citizens and $50 by the county judge were offered. A glove belonging to Frank Meriweather dropped near the scene of the crime was the first clue discovered. George Holland's actions also aroused suspicion, and today Holland was arrested by Town Marshal J. E. Jackson and Lawrence Moore. He confessed and implicated the others, five of whom were arrested. They are in jail at Pembroke and will be brought here tonight for safe keeping. Ed Mosley, colored, told the officers that he witnessed the crime from the road and had been afraid to tell. He is in custody. The name of the man murdered will probably never be known.

Chicago Court Imposes $1000 Fine Against Union.

Says the Usual Warfare Made Against Innocent Workers Cannot Be Tolerated.

FIRST CASE ON RECORD

Chicago, Dec. 14—One thousand dollars' fine for illegal acts as a corporate body was imposed upon Franklin union No. 4, Press Feeders, by Judge Jesse Holdom Saturday. The court found the union as a corporation guilty of contempt of court for violating an injunction restraining it as an organization from interfering with the business or employees of the printing firms, members of the Chicago Typographical union.

Judge Holdom's action creates a precedent, it being the first time in the history of trades unionists in this country that a court has fined a union as a corporation. An immediate appeal was taken from the action of Judge Holdom.

In giving his decision Judge Holdom said: "It appears that Franklin Union No. 4, a corporation, is liable to a fine for violation of the injunction in this case; it but remains for the determination as to what the amount of that fine shall be. Punishment is meted out in accordance with the gravity of the offense committed. The consequence of violation of the injunction by the union have been many assaults on innocent persons seeking to work under contracts satisfactory to themselves and their employers."

Continuing, Judge Holdom said:

"There has been no discrimination between the sexes. Women have been assaulted and terrorized and followed to their homes, and their families intimidated. Murder has even resulted from the unlawful acts of the union and its striking members. From affidavits in evidence in this case, it appears that more than 50 people have been, since the inception of the difficulties set forth in the bill, assaulted, intimidated, called opprobrious epithets and threatened with harm, simply because they worked in a place voluntarily vacated by members of Franklin Union No. 4 all the alleged aggressors, with the exception of John Muecher, condemned twice for assault and unlawful picketing, in company with members of the union, in violation of the injunction bill, has been defended by the lawyer for the union."

Further along the court says: "It would seem from the evidential facts that the action of the union in the establishing of strike headquarters, the payment of strike benefits at the strike headquarters by the union treasurer with the union money, and the fact that no discrimination was made against the members of the union known to be guilty of acts in themselves criminal, establish the union as a co-conspirator with its offending members, party and privy to the violations of the injunction of which its members stand convicted, and therefore guilty of violation of the injunction and amenable to discipline for such violation, providing it can be disciplined under the law."

Again alluding to acts of violence, Judge Holdom declares:

"Such warfare cannot and will not be tolerated by the courts in a land of peace, where people are governed by the law, and the law would be lacking in one of its most necessary attributes if it was impotent to punish for such violation."

His wife sent for a physician, but before he could arrive, another coughing spell came on and Duckwell died from suffocation.—St. Louis Globe Democrat, Dec. 1, 1901." ## Anyone can catch fish in California

Bait, a line, hook, rod and a little patience are all that are necessary.

There is good sport within a stone's throw of several of the largest hotels along the coast, but the best fishing is at Santa Catalina Island. Santa Catalina is the home of the tuna—Tiger of the Pacific—which attains a weight of 200 pounds and has been known to tow a boat for hours. The tuna visits Santa Catalina for only a few days in the year, but sea bass, yellow-tail and barracuda are plentiful the year round.

Santa Catalina is only three and one-half hours from Los Angeles and Los Angeles is only three and one-half days from Chicago via the Rock Island System. Full information on request.

The feast lasts eight days and is quietly celebrated by Jewish families in their homes. Although it is one of the most memorable of Jewish religious anniversaries it is a minor holiday compared with the Feast of the Tabernacles, Passover and others.

The celebration of this festival commemorates the restoration of the Jewish religion from the hands of Antiochus, the Syrian ruler, who, as is stated in the Bible, wanted the Hebrews to abandon their religion and accept the Greek religion.

The first of a series of devotional services was held at the Y. M. C. A. building yesterday afternoon. Talks on "Has Christianity a Practical Value for Young Men" were made by Messrs. W. B. ### Citizen Was "Rattled."

An incident during the royal visit to Edinburgh, which was the cause of a good deal of amusement at the time, occurred on the occasion of the conferring of the accolade by the king on one of the newly made knights. The worthy citizen, when placing himself upon his knees in order to receive the all-important tap on the shoulder from the royal sword, knelt down in the flurry of the moment at such a distance from the king's chair that he was quite out of reach. A sign was made to him by some one in attendance to approach nearer, whereupon the good man, without rising to his feet, shuffled along on his knees until he got within the required distance. His majesty expressed his interest by a genial smile, while his gracious consort held up to her face an enormous bouquet.—Modern Society.

SAW HIS OWN COFFIN
Harrowing Experience of a Man Who Escaped the Gallows

A Detective's "Evidence" Convicted Him of a Crime he Was Ignorant of.

SUFFERED FROM SUSPENSE

Denver, Colo., Dec. 14.—"I saw them unloading a long pine box."

"What is that? I asked the death watch."

"That is your coffin, King," he answered.

Innocent, yet doomed to die a felon's death, Orestes Pagnini, alias Robert King, knows all the agony, except the short sharp pain of actual dissolution, felt by a murderer who is executed. At one time, only nine hours before he was to be shot, the warden of the penitentiary brought him the stay of execution. It was in describing the events of that awful night that Pagnini told about seeing his coffin brought to the prison.

On January 8, 1900, the "Sheep Ranch" gambling house in Salt Lake City was held up and the proprietor, Geoffrey Prowse, was killed. James Lynch was found wounded and with a mark on his face. Shortly after the robbery Pagnini was arrested. He proved he was with Robert Dunbar, county clerk, fifteen blocks away, at the time of the murder, but the positive evidence given by Detective Sheets convicted Pagnini.

Secure in the knowledge of his own innocence and with a foreigner's ignorance of legal methods, Pagnini was the most surprised man in the court room when he heard the verdict that he must die.

"You can choose whether you will be shot or be hanged," said the court. "If you do not make the choice the court will choose for you."

Dazed and like a man afflicted with a horrible nightmare, Pagnini managed to mumble that he would rather die by shooting than on the scaffold. The date was fixed at December 13, 1900.

In his terrible predicament the prisoner communicated with Dr. Cneco, Italian consul at Denver. The letter was a convincing one. Dr. Cneco went to Salt Lake City.

"I shall investigate the case," said the consul, "but if you are guilty I shall not try to help you."

After two weeks' inquiry Dr. Cneco became certain Pagnini was innocent. An appeal to fellow-countrymen was scattered broadcast through the newspapers printed in that language. With the $1,500 raised, an application for a new trial was made. It was refused. It served, however, to postpone the execution, the stay arriving nine hours before Pagnini was to die.

Another application resulted in the supreme court granting a new trial. Meanwhile Lynch had confessed that he was the murderer, and had repeated time and again that he had never seen Pagnini until he met him at the prison. The district attorney became convinced of Pagnini's innocence and had the case nolle prossed.

Lynch is to be shot next January. Said Pagnini last evening: "It seems strange to be free. No one not condemned to die can realize the awfulness of such a sentence. Language is inadequate to convey a knowledge of what the doomed man undergoes."

"Some one tries to cheer you by telling you death is instantaneous and is painless. One time at the military college I hurt myself very badly. I wanted water. They told me afterward they got it for me in less than a minute, but it seemed to me more than an hour."

"I used to think of that experience when they told me death was instantaneous. Time is only a measure of events, and in times of great agony one may live longer in a minute than during all his preceding lifetime."

CHAPTER XXI.

HOW BILL HIT THE TRAIL.

WHEN "the crowd" was with us the Pilot read us all sorts of tales of adventures in all lands by heroes of all ages, but when we three sat together by our fire the Pilot would always read us tales of the heroes of sacred story, and these delighted Bill more than those of any of the ancient empires of the past. He had his favorites. Abraham, Moses, Joshua, Gideon, never failed to arouse his admiration. But Jacob was to him always "a mean cuss," and David he could not appreciate. Most of all he admired Moses and the apostle Paul, whom he called "that little chap." But when the reading was about the one Great Man that moved majestic mark the gospel stories Bill made no comments he was too high for approval.

By and by Bill began to tell these tales to the boys, and one night, when a quiet mood had fallen upon the company, Bill broke the silence.

"Say, Pilot, where was it that the little chap got mixed up into that riot?"

"Yes," said the Pilot.

"Right. You remember when he stood off the whole gang from the stairs?"

"Oh, yes, at Jerusalem."

"Yes, that's the spot. Perhaps you would read that to the boys. Good yarn! Little chap, you know, stood up and told 'em they were all sorts of blundered thieves and outcasts, and stood 'em off. Played it alone too."

Most of the boys failed to recognize the story in its new dress. There was much interest.

"Who was the duck? Who was the gang? What was the row about?"

"The Pilot here'll tell you. If you'd kind of give 'em a lead before you begin, they'd catch on to the yarn better." This last to the Pilot, who was preparing to read.

"Well, it was at Jerusalem," began the Pilot, when Bill interrupted:

"If I might remark, perhaps it might help the boys on to the trail, mebbe, if you'd tell 'em how the little chap struck his new gait." So he designated the apostle's conversion.

Then the Pilot introduced the apostle with some formality to the company, describing with such vivid touches his life and early training, his sudden wrench from all he held dear under the stress of a new conviction, his magnificent enthusiasm and courage, his tenderness and patience, that I was surprised to find myself regarding him as a sort of hero, and the boys were all ready to back him against any odds. As the Pilot read the story of the arrest at Jerusalem, stopping now and then to picture the scene, we saw it all and were in the thick of it. The raging crowd hustling and beating the life out of the brave little man, the sudden thrust of the disciplined Roman guard through the mass, the rescue, the pause on the stairway, the calm face of the little hero beckoning for a hearing, the quieting of the frantic, frothing mob, the fearless speech—all passed before us. The boys were thrilled.

"Good stuff, eh?"

"Ain't he a daisy?"

"Daisy! He's a whole sunflower patch!"

"Yes," drawled Bill, highly appreciating their marks of approval. "That's what I call a particular nice character of a man. There ain't no manner of in-secks on to him."

"You bet!" said Bill.

"I say," broke in one of the boys, who was just emerging from the tenderfoot stage, "of course that's in the Bible, ain't it?"

The Pilot assented.

"Well, how do you know it's true?"

The Pilot was proceeding to elaborate his argument when Bill cut in somewhat more abruptly than was his wont.

"Look here, young feller!" Bill's voice was in the tone of command. The man looked as he was bid. "How do you know anything's true? How do you know the Pilot here's true when he speaks? Can't you tell by the feel? You know by the sound of his voice, don't you?" Bill paused, and the young fellow agreed readily.

"Well, how do you know a blanked son of a she jackass when you see him?" Again Bill paused. There was no reply.

"Well," said Bill, resuming his deliberate drawl, "I'll give you the information without extra charge. It's by the sound he makes when he opens his blanked jaw."

"But," went on the young skeptic, nettled at the laugh that went round, "that don't prove anything. You know," turning to the Pilot, "that there are heaps of people who don't believe the Bible."

The Pilot nodded.

"Some of the smartest, best educated men are agnostics," proceeded the young man, warning to his theme and failing to notice the stiffening of Bill's lank figure. "I don't know but what I am one myself."

"That so?" said Bill, with sudden interest.

"I guess so," was the modest reply.

"Got it bad?" went on Bill, with a note of anxiety in his tone.

But the young man turned to the Pilot and tried to open a fresh argu-

"Whatever he's got," said Bill to the others in a mild voice, "it's spoilin' his manners."

"Yes," went on Bill meditatively after the slight laugh had died, "it's ruin' in to the judgment. He don't seem to know when he interferes with the game. Why too?"

Still the argument went on.

"Seems as if he ought to take some-thing," said Bill in a voice suspiciously mild. "What would you suggest?"

"A walk, mebbe?" said Bill in delighted expectation.

"I hold the opinion that you have mentioned an uncommonly valuable remedy—better 'n pain killer almost," Bill rose indignantly.

"I say," he drawled, tapping the young fellow, "it appears to me a little walk would perhaps be good, mebbe."

"All right; wait till I get my cap," was the unsuspicious reply.

"I don't think perhaps you won't need it, mebbe. I cherish the opinion you'll perhaps be warm enough," Bill's voice had unconsciously passed into a sterner tone. Bill was on his feet and at the door.

"This here interview is private and confidential," said Bill to his partner.

"Exactly," said Bill, opening the door. At this the young fellow, who was a strapping six footer, but soft and flabby, drew back and refused to go. He was too late. Bill's grip was on his collar and out they went into the snow, and behind them Bill closed the door.

In vain the young fellow struggled to wrench himself free from the hands that laid him by the shoulder and the back of the neck. I took it all in from the window. He might have been a boy for all the effect his plungings had upon the long, snowy arms that gripped him so fiercely. After a minute's furious struggle the young fellow stood quiet, when Bill suddenly shifted his grip from the shoulder to the seat of his buckskin trousers. Then began a series of evolutions before the house, up and down, forward and back, which the unfortunate victim, with hands wildly clutching at empty air, was quite powerless to resist till he was brought up, panting and gasping, subdued, to a standstill.

"I'll learn you agnostics and several other kinds of tricks," said Bill in a terrible voice, his drawl lengthening perceptibly. "Come round here, with your hands wildly clutching at empty air, was quite powerless to resist till he was brought up, panting and gasping, subdued, to a standstill."

"There ain't no soothable words for such conduct. By the livin' Jeniny!" He suddenly swung his prisoner off his feet, lifted him bodily and held him over his head at arm's length. "I've a notion to—"

"Don't! Don't! For heaven's sake!" cried the struggling wretch. "I'll stop it! I will!"

Bill at once lowered him and set him on his feet.

"All right! Shake!" he said, holding out his hand, which the other took with caution.

It was a remarkably sudden conversion and lasting in its effects. There was no more agnosticism in the little group that gathered around the Pilot for the nightly reading.

The interest in the reading kept growing night by night.

"Seems as if the Pilot was gittin' in his work," said Bill to me, and looking at the grave, eager faces I agreed. He was getting in his work with Bill, too; though perhaps Bill did not know it. I remember one night, when the others had gone, the Pilot was reading to us the parable of the talents and Bill was particularly interested in the servant who failed in his duty.

"Ornery cuss, eh?" he remarked.

"And call too, eh? Served him blamed well right, in my opinion!"

But when the practical bearing of the parable became clear to him, after long silence, he said slowly:

"Well, that there seems to indicate that it's about time for me to get a rustle on." Then, after another silence, he said hesitatingly: "This here church buildin' business now, do you think that 'it perhaps come, mebbe? I guess not, eh? 'Tain't much, of course, anyway." Poor Bill, he was like a child, and the Pilot handled him with a mother's touch.

"What are you best at, Bill?"

"Bronco bustin' and cattle," said Bill wonderingly. "That's my line."

"Well, Bill, my line is preaching just now and plottin' you know." The Pilot's smile was like a sunbeam on a rainy day, for there were tears in his eyes and voice. "And we have just got to be faithful. You see what he says: 'Well done, good and faithful servant. Thou hast been faithful.'"

Bill was puzzled.

"Faithful!" he repeated. "Does that mean with the cattle, perhaps?"

"Yes, that's just it, Bill, and with everything else that comes your way."

And Bill never forgot that lesson, for I heard him, with a kind of quiet enthusiasm, giving it to Bill as a great find. "Now, I call that a fair deal," he said to his friend. "Gives every man a show. No cuts on the sleeve."

"That's so," was Bill's thoughtful reply; "distributes the trumps."

Theatrical Notes.

Another Ibsen play, "A Doll's House" will shortly be revived by George H. Brennan with a prominent female star in the principal role.

The "Two Little Waifs" company played to poor business in Paducah Saturday on account of the inclement weather. They will lay off until after the holidays, and left for Cincinnati to spend their vacation.

Seldom does any city have such an array of attractions as Manager English will have at the Kentucky this week and next. This week he will have "The Prince of Pilsen," "Hedda Gabler" and Ward and Vokes, among the attractions, and these alone are among the finest on the road.

Manager Jas. E. English says that he has learned to take every knock as a "boost," and that it usually turns out that way. He declares that to "kneek" a show before it comes as is being done in certain quarters, is too plainly vicious to do him any harm, and that as it is unworthy of decent journalism, he feels sure the public will consider the source.

Alberta Gallatin, who was in Paducah recently, and her company appearing in Ibsen's "Ghosts" are now on their way to the Pacific coast. Her return journey will be made through the principal cities reached by the Northern Pacific railroad. Miss Gallatin will finish her tour in May in West Virginia, the state which her late father, General Albert Gallatin Jenkins, represented at Congress.

Lewis Morrison, who played "Faust" here several days ago bought his wife a $1,000 diamond heart, according to the Louisville papers, for a Christmas present. Mr. Morrison's wife is now playing the Pacific coast circuit. His daughter, Rosabel, is also on the stage. He is reputed to be quite wealthy, owning a fine home in Peekskill, N. Y., and large interests in corporations. He has made his fortune playing one role, that of "Mephisto."

With a rattling cast, a large and strong company throughout, fresh from remarkably successful runs in the East, beautifully costumed and staged, the famous Pixley and Luders musical comedy, the "Prince of Pilsen" will be seen at the Kentucky tomorrow night. As the production is altogether new and beautiful, the cities on the present tour really enjoy a finer representation than New York and Boston had. The sale of seats for the event begun today.

The costumes of Ward & Vokes' new musical frolic, "A Pair of Pinks," are said to be the handsomest ever given musical farce. In the sixteen big musical numbers in which the chorus of show girls are seen they have a complete change for each set. Ward & Vokes have always made a kind of trademark of the line, "The best dressed extravaganza organization in America," and this year's wardrobe certainly holds up that claim. Ward & Vokes and "A Pair of Pinks" will be seen at the Kentucky Friday night.

Elitia Proctor Otis commenced her tour in Ibsen's "Hedda Gabler" in Clarksville, W. Va., last week under the direction of George H. Brennan appearing before the largest audience in the history of the local theatre. Just before the performance the star received a cablegram from Ibsen wishing her success and Godspeed. Her company is a particularly strong one including such well-known names as Donald Robertson, Marion Ashworth, Wilfred Lucas, Frank Dennithorne, Anna O. Titus, Laura Palmer and Henry Austin. It will be here this week.

Keen interest is taken in the approaching appearance of Miss Elitia Proctor Otis at the Kentucky on Thursday night. For years this actress has been famous for delineations of the brilliant woman of the world, and Ibsen's "Hedda Gabler" gives her unequalled opportunities along this line. Entering the stage direct from the inner circle of New York society, she brought thither a high dignity, an unconscious grace and a sense of the polite and fitting which are lamentably wanting in many dramatic assumptions. Withal Miss Otis is clever and witty, and her troops of friends in all the more important cities of the United States attest the esteem in which she is held.

Prof. Charles Gilbert, the well known pianist, has organized an orchestra to give a free recital just before the holidays. The orchestra will be the biggest ever organized in the city and will play all the latest compositions. The members are Prof. Charles Gilbert, piano; Prof. Wm.
